The rumor has reached the United States that Count Cassini will not be sent to the post at Madrid, but will be made Secretary of Foreign Affairs of Russia, thus becoming one of the czar's close advisers. It is thought that his long residence in America and close intimacy with the customs and thought of the people makes his counsel of especial value to his emperor and country at this time. Count Cassini expressed regret at leaving America where, he says, he has spent some of the happiest years of his life and to his closest friends. He said he felt keenly the death of Secretary Hay, whom he admired immensely.

SCRAMBLE BEGINS FOR SNAP JOBS

New Commission Secretaries Are Being Most Eagerly Sought for by Factionists.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., July 11.—More interesting than the examination of complaints against the railroads, a number of which have already been filed, is the election today of a secretary of the commission. The reason is that almost every capable unemployed for this $2,500 job. Madison offers most of the candidates. T. M. Parcell, briefly state treasurer recently, is one of the most prominent. Others are John M. Winterbotham, present deputy railroad commissioner to J. W. Thomas; E. C. Mason and Stephen W. Gilman, the latter two of whom assisted Commissioner Thomas in the investigation of the books of the roads. Frank J. Barry of Milwaukee, statistical assistant to E. P. Bacon in gathering a quantity of anti-railroad material, is in the lead for the place. He is favored by Commissioner Barnes and may get the vote of Commissioner Erickson. Commissioner Erickson is in favor of Walter Dews, chief clerk of the department of labor and industrial statistics and he assistant of Commissioner Erickson in the preparation of the tables of comparative rates extensively used by the governor on his campaign tour. It is said that Commissioner Erickson fears that unless a capable statistician be secured as secretary, he himself will have to do the mathematical research of the commission. Commissioner Meyer is in favor of Mr. Winterbotham, for the reason that this candidate is familiar with the law of railroads and also with the investigations made by Commissioner Thomas during the last two years.

Yesterday afternoon the commission organized, but did nothing more than elect Mr. Barnes as chairman and start to open the great bundles of mail that have accumulated since the enactment of the law.

Arrives Ahead of Time
Chicago, July 11.—Walter Scott's "Coyote" special arrived here at eleven-fifty-seven, three hours and six minutes ahead of the schedule time prepared by the Santa Fe officials for the run from Los Angeles to Chicago. A mob of three hundred fought like demons to get the first glimpse of the circus of Death Valley, who is intent on scattering his wealth in true western style. After thanking the crew for the care taken of him the millionaire posed for his picture with a dog, a cur picked up in the streets of Los Angeles. He then escaped the crowd by jumping into a Wells-Fargo express wagon and was driven rapidly to a hotel. The special cost Scott $5,000, but he beat the previous record of fifty-seven hours and fifty-six minutes by twelve hours and fifty-two minutes. The distance is 2,246.9 miles.

NEW JAPANESE LOAN BONDS BEING SOLD

Sentiment in Washington Is Favorable to Loan and Bonds Will Sell Readily.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, July 11.—An official circular was issued today offering for sale bonds for the new Japanese loan of $50,000,000. They are 4 1/2 per cent bonds, secured by a second mortgage on the revenues of the tobacco monopoly and they will be sold in London at 90 and the United States at 87 1/2. The loan is to run for 20 years, but Japan will have the option of retiring the bonds after five years from the date of their issue.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, July 11.—Much interest is felt here among government officials and local financiers regarding the new Japanese loan. Sentiment generally is strongly favorable to the loan and every confidence is expressed in the ability of the Japanese government to carry along successfully the obligations the loan incurs. Some unfavorable comment has been aroused because the new bond issue is secured by the tobacco monopoly since the first loan was secured in the same way, but generally it is believed that the new loan is intended simply to enable the funding or refunding of internal debt, so that in such a case the financial position of the government as a whole need not be much affected by the issue of these new bonds. The new loan completes for the time being a remarkable series of financial operation on the part of Japan.

Under the law the contestant is allowed $2,000 for his expenses. The contestants, as filed, are: William H. Jackson (Rep.) vs. Thomas A. Smith (Dem.), First Maryland District; Aaron P. Patterson (Dem.), Seventh Carolina District; Harry M. Coudrey (Rep.) vs. Ernest E. Woods (Dem.), Twelfth Missouri District; C. P. Pauka (Home Rule) vs. John Kalamianaoa (Rep.), Hawaii. The Hawaiian was the first contest opened. Kalamianaoa ("Prince Cupid") is the present holder of the seat and is very popular among the members of the House. The fight in this case will probably be over the validity of the certificate.

The Jackson-Smith contest from Maryland, will be the most determined contest of all. Already a wagon load of testimony has been received, and it represents only the side of the contestant. Among the exhibits are ten ballot boxes with the ballots enclosed.

CALEB POWERS CAUSE OF ROW

NEWPORT OFFICIALS VERY UGLY

Mayor And Policemen Attack Jailer For Having Prepared Comfortable Cell For The Noted Prisoner.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Cincinnati, Ohio, July 11.—In the custody of United States Marshal Shoup under the orders of United States Judge Cochran, who last week assumed the jurisdiction in his case, Caleb Powers, charged with complicity in the murder of William Goebel at Frankfort in the winter of 1900, was lodged in the Newport jail, across the river from this city, where he will be held pending a decision of the various legal points arising out of his transfer from state to federal jurisdiction.

He had no sooner entered Newport jail with his attendants than Mayor August Helmhold, democrat, accompanied by Chief of Police Deputy and several policemen appeared on the scene and demanded that Jailer Ben Plaeger, republican, put Powers in an ordinary cell and not in the one prepared for him.

Mayor and Police Ugly.
Mayor Helmhold and his staff were demonstrative from the start, and it is claimed that Chief of Police Deputy drew a revolver and pointed it in the face of Jailer Plaeger, but did not pull the trigger. Jailer Plaeger and his assistants, Wilson and Davis, and a bystander resented the actions of the mayor and policemen, and blows were struck.

Mayor Helmhold was knocked down and three of his front teeth were knocked out. Blows were struck by many persons, but it is not known who struck the mayor. Mayor Helmhold had the jailer's two assistants arrested for interfering with an officer, but they were at once released on $100 bond each by Police Judge Moore. Jailer Plaeger was not arrested.

Warrant for City Executive.
On instructions from United States District Attorney Tinsley, warrants were sworn out for the arrest of Mayor Helmhold for interfering with United States officers.

Powers was transferred to an ordinary cell, and the new furniture in the cell first prepared for him was confiscated by the mayor. An attempt will be made by the jailer to have the mayor enjoined from interfering with his affairs. It is claimed that the city charter gives the jailer absolute control of the jail. The only articles of furniture placed in the cell and to which the mayor objected were a new bed and bedding, two chairs, a table, wardrobe, rug, two window shades and a calico curtain.

These were furnished through contributions by citizens, headed by a young newspaper man. Most of the articles were wrecked in the fight in the cell.

Powers Is Hopeful.
During the five years Powers has been in prison he has been tried four times and sentenced to death three times, but as he walked into the jail he expressed hope of his ultimate acquittal of the charge entered against him. He was the only one of those charged with conspiracy to murder William Goebel to be convicted and sentenced to death.

His fight for life has been remarkable and the attorneys expressed belief that three more years may pass before the end of the present legal complications will make possible the trial in the federal courts for which he had applied five weeks ago at London, Ky.

SHOWALTER HAS STIRRED UP FUSS

PRESIDENT OF STATE BOARD OF CONTROL IS EXCITED.

RESENTS THE TRUTHS TOLD

Tries to Belittle the Former Superintendent Because He Places the Blame in Right Place.

That the statements of C. R. Showalter, the retiring superintendent of the state school for blind, hurt is evidenced by the communication which appears in the two Milwaukee morning papers signed by Gustav Kuestermann, of Green Bay, president of the state board of control. Mr. Kuestermann goes at length into his explanation as to how he happened to buy beer for members of the musical club of the Blind Institute in Milwaukee, comments on boiled eggs being thrown away and finding rotten potatoes at the school storeroom, tries to belittle Mr. Showalter by poking fun at him and winds up by making a complete ass of himself. Mr. Showalter's statement, clear-cut and decisive has hurt the state board. It was better they had kept quiet rather than try to answer charges which were made relative to cost of living and other items which Mr. Kuestermann shows in the following article the board knows nothing about.

Says the Article
Mr. Showalter returned from a business trip to Chicago last night and when shown the Kuestermann article this morning simply reiterated his statement published a few days ago. Relative to the denial of Kuestermann as to the board's demanding that the food supply be kept within a pro rata cost for the number of "inmates" he simply referred to the letters on file in the Board of Control's office which would substantiate his statements. Referring to the visit of the board to the school after the second complaint of the students Mr. Showalter says that three members of the board—Mr. Kuestermann, Harvey Clark and Allan D. Conover did visit the school, talked with the boys, the teachers and matron, but that he was not present at their conferences. They ignored his position as superintendent and went over his head to make changes in conditions concerning which there were no complaints.

Surprised at Answer
He was surprised that Mr. Kuestermann had not dwelt more at length upon the heating apparatus of the new green house as he had been informed that by close figuring they had reduced the cost of the heating apparatus he had appraised at a thousand dollars to some nine hundred for a five hundred dollar building. "Half truths are hard to answer," said Mr. Showalter, "and no further details. What I stated in my interview published last Friday of the board's criticism that our table expenses were extravagant can be sustained by letters now on file in the State Board of Control's office, at Madison. Mr. Kuestermann's answer to my article I do not think merits an answer as he fails to discredit any statement I have made."

Following is the communication referred to:
"Allow me a sufficient space in your esteemed paper to answer the charges made by former Superintendent Showalter against the state board of control. It has always been the rule of the board to perform its many duties in a conscientious manner and to see that the inmates of the several institutions and the pupils of the blind and deaf schools have the best care in every way.

"Occasional attacks made upon us, especially during the heat of the campaign, were not paid any attention to, but we let the people of the state judge our work by the results attained."

"Now, however, when a man, whom we had placed in charge of one of our most important institutions, and whom, in course of time we found utterly unfit for the position, makes a number of and unwarranted statements and accusations as is contained in Showalter's article, it would be unjust to ourselves and to the public to remain silent."

"Great Mistake in Keeping Showalter"
"While with the great and arduous work resting upon our shoulders mistakes are apt to be made, we have tried to steer clear of them as much as possible, but we freely acknowledge one great mistake made by us: viz.: To have kept this man Showalter in office as long as we did, when we felt convinced that he lacked the interest and ability for this position."

"Thinking that perhaps he might grow with the length of service and in course of time become big enough for the position he held, was the only reason of continuing him in office in 1904. However, it seems as difficult for a man of small caliber to change and widen out as it is to make a Steinway grand out of an old square piano."

"It thus became our duty, for the good of the institution, to dismiss him and look for some one who has the ability, education, and the good will to properly fill the position."

"For a man of the former superintendent's capacity it seems quite natural to vent his wrath in the newspapers, and try to have it appear that great injustice has been done to him."

WHAT CAUSES DANDRUFF.
Greatest European Authority on Skin Diseases, Says It's a Germ.

The old idea that dandruff is scales of skin thrown off, through a feverish condition of the scalp is exploded. Prof. Unna, Hamburg, Germany, European authority on skin diseases, says dandruff is a germ disease. The germ burrows under the scalp, throwing up little scales of cuticle, and sapping the vitality of the hair at the root. The only hair preparation that kills dandruff germs is Newbro's Herculicide. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Not only cures dandruff, but stops falling hair and permits a luxuriant growth. Delightful hair dressing. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps to The Herculicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

and that his leaving will prove a great detriment to the school.

"How much better for his future, if even at this date he had recognized the fact that he was unfit for a position of this kind, he had looked for some occupation within his narrow scope. 'Staculisses, philosophus, manisses'."

Explains Incident in Milwaukee
"In referring to the charges brought forth by this worthy gentleman, it seems quite natural that I should first try to clear myself, having been accused of the terrible crime of taking the blind muscians into a saloon and treating them to liquor and cigars."

"When five of these musicians, every one over twenty years old, gave a concert at the Pabst theatre, I happened to be in Milwaukee and not alone did I urge a number of my friends to attend, but I was in my seat when the curtain rose to listen to the well-known, excellent work of my young friends."

"After the concert I congratulated them and invited them to take some refreshments at the Pabst theatre restaurant, located in the same building."

"As far as I can remember there were in the party, aside of my five blind friends, the mother and sister of one of the musicians and my worthy former superintendent, who now so bitterly complains of my leading a drunkard's life in consequence."

Admits One or Two Boys Drank Beer
"I can assure the good people of the state that neither the lemonade, the glass of beer taken by one or two of them, or the cigars indulged in by a few, have had any bad effect, nor have I heard of any one leading a drunkard's life in consequence."

"I will also, in justice to the former superintendent, say that he did not drink anything stronger than lemonade. Whether his special talents and accomplishments that still lay dormant could have been aroused by some more invigorating drink than lemonade, I am unable to say."

"The cigars I treated to a few of the boys were not the first ones they smoked in their lives. While I do not approve of even the older boys smoking in the institution, I frequently, in going through their rooms, noticed that the rule established by the superintendent was not lived up to. His sense of smelling, perhaps more strongly developed than his other faculties, should have led him to spot the guilty parties."

Says Showalter Furnished Cigars
"If it is true that the smoking members of the board made it difficult to enforce his rules, he should not have tempted them by offering them cigars to smoke after meals in the sitting room. While from the statement of the former superintendent it would seem that the bad habit was freely indulged in by some of our members, in every corner of the building, it is true that no one ever smoked in any room except the ones exclusively occupied by the superintendent and in the office."

"Now, as to the gross misstatement made by the former superintendent in connection with the food trouble."

"The board never asked him to reduce his per capita to a certain amount, nor did they ever express a desire to have the food change in quantity or quality."

Boiled Eggs Thrown in Garbage Pail
"It was evident, however, from the bills for subsistence, that there was a great waste somewhere. The writer had proof of this fact by seeing some boiled eggs, shelled for the convenience of the pupils and remaining untouched on their plates, were thrown in the garbage pail."

"One time, in looking over the storeroom, I discovered part of a barrel of sweet potatoes completely rotted, not a whole one remaining in the lot."

"Such chaos existed in this room where provisions were kept that much time must have been wasted in finding things."

"When the former superintendent's attention was called to all these matters he simply said that this department was solely in charge of the head cook."

"In all other institutions the superintendents know what is going on in every department, and none of them would have tolerated such a condition of things a single day."

Says Potatoes Twice Were Moldy
"When the legislative committee paid a visit to the institution, one of the members in pointing to several piles of potatoes in the vegetable cellar, among which there were a lot of mouldy ones, remarked that to save the rest they should be picked over. While the former superintendent was giving orders to have this done, the same condition was found when I again visited the place after a few weeks."

"In fact every member of the legislative committee, after looking through all the institutions, remarked that he was pleased with every one of them except the school for the blind, whose head officer did not seem to be a fit man for the position."

"When the complaint about the food reached our office I was in the east taking my daughter and little grandson to the boat on which to return to their home in Germany. Mr. Clark, however, in my absence, immediately started for Janesville and talked over matters with the superintendent, getting his assurance that he would personally see to it that there were no future reasons for complaint."

Meals Were Not Properly Prepared
"A short time later the complaints were renewed, not to us, but through the newspapers. All the members immediately went to Janesville and there made a most thorough investigation, lasting from 7 o'clock in the evening to nearly 2 o'clock in the morning. A number of the complainants and all the teachers and head cook were called before us and it was made clear to the members that, while there was plenty to eat, the meals were not properly prepared."

"Miss Curtis, our efficient matron, who formerly had supervision over the kitchen, was again placed in charge of it and the complaints ceased."

"In the face of these facts the statement of the former superintendent that the board took no recognition of the appeals made by the pupils must be branded a deliberate falsehood."

"When the worthy former superintendent is not an expert in any single line, perhaps that of chicken raising excepted, it cannot be expected that the members of our board should be fully posted in every profession and every branch of industry. We, therefore, employed an architect who enjoys a good reputation to prepare plans and specifications for the greenhouse, cold storage and the heating and sewer connections. He probably made a mistake, as is now seen from the Showalter article, in not consulting the superintendent and making use of this gentleman's great knowledge in the heating and plumbing line, but it was not done and we must stand the consequences."

Electricity in Place of Gasoline
"The board is also blamed for putting in, at not a great expense, an electric cooking outfit in the superintendent's kitchen. This was done to take the place of the gasoline stove which was considered a menace to the safety of the children and building."

"To characterize the spirit in which the former superintendent's article is written, no part serves better than those few lines in which he insinuates that there is something wrong investigating about the world's fair furniture. No matter how much of a lightweight, he must, from the explanation made to him and other superintendents, be able to understand the matter fully, and know that no harm came to any one in this deal."

"To have the readers fully comprehend this transaction and also to give the former superintendent another chance to catch on, I will give a full explanation."

"Perhaps even the worthy Showalter knows that there was a world's fair at St. Louis in the year 1904. The state of Wisconsin, under the supervision of a commission created by Gov. Hoard, had a special building erected on the grounds and suitably furnished. The cost of the furniture, carpets, curtains, etc., was about $5,000."

Turned Over to Board by the State
"When the fair was over, a few pieces of the furniture, difficult to ship, were sold in St. Louis. The balance, costing originally about $4,200, was sent back to Milwaukee and stored in Gimbel Bros. warehouse. This, the property of the state of Wisconsin, was, at the suggestion of the commission, turned over to our board to be distributed among the several institutions."

"So that the commission could make a proper entry on its books, an order on the state treasurer for $1,500, the amount agreed upon, passed into the hands of the commission, which immediately turned back this sum into the state treasury, to be credited to its account."

"Is it now clear to you, Mr. Former Superintendent, that the state of Wisconsin simply sold to the state of Wisconsin, to be used in the several state institutions, a certain lot of furniture, the price paid for it cutting no figure as long as the ownership remained the same?"

"If he does not understand it, let some of his former third grade pupils try to explain it to him."

Declares Showalter 'Simply Runs Wild'
"The dear man simply runs wild when making the statement that the members of the board knew nothing about the purposes of the school or its methods of education. The purposes I set forth in my catechism of Wisconsin institutions, and while perhaps a little rusty in algebra and geometry, I consider myself able to tell as to the progress made in other educational branches, in music and in the training departments."

"To say that I or the other members of the board hardly ever visited the classrooms is simply absurd. When the teachers as well as the pupils, so dear to me, will testify that when at the school I took every opportunity to be with the scholars at their work, at their meals and during their leisure hours. I even got up much earlier than usual in the morning, and long before the superintendent arose from his slumbers, to see the pupils at breakfast."

"When I have it on the best of authority that the superintendent, now 'ex,' did not visit the willow working department for weeks, it seems quite strange that he should accuse the members of the board of not looking through every schoolroom during their short visits to the institution."

"A person who is negligent in some of his duties is very apt to become careless in others. I, therefore, cannot help but think that the good results in the educational training departments were mainly due to our corps of faithful, able and conscientious teachers and not to the supervision exercised over them. Our board appreciated the efforts of the teachers by reappointing every one who was willing to continue."

"In conclusion, I will say that the members of the board have done their plain duty in not continuing a man in office who had proved himself utterly unfit for the position, and all we ask forgiveness for from the people of our good state is that we did not dismiss him sooner."

GUSTAV KUESTERMANN,
"President State Board of Control."

THE COMPLAINTS OF PEDESTRIANS

THEIR CONVENIENCE CONSIDERED AT COUNCIL MEETING.

ORDER ORDINANCE ENFORCED

Marshal Instructed to Compel Property Owners to Trim Shade Trees—New Lights.

Convenience of pedestrians, especially after sundown, was looked after at the meeting of the City Council last evening. Aldermen stated that they had heard complaints that the foliage and limbs of shade trees hung so low over the walks in many places that they struck persons passing under, while one woman in the first ward complained that an expensive hat had been torn from her head. Attention was also called to the fact that the arc lamps on the corners would give better satisfaction, lighting the walks under the trees, if many of the low-hanging branches were removed.

Instructions to Marshal
The city ordinance regulating the trimming of shade trees says that all owners or occupants of lands must see that no part of any shade-tree, either foliage or limb, be lower than ten feet from any walk. On motion it was unanimously passed that the City Marshal, whose duty it was to enforce this ordinance, be ordered to instruct the property-owners to comply with the regulations specified. This will mean a great deal of trimming in nearly every part of the city and hundreds of property-owners will be affected.

Fifteen New Arc Lamps
At the recommendation of the lighting committee Alderman Murray moved that three new arc lights be allotted each ward and that they be installed at the places signified by the aldermen of the respective wards. The order was adopted.

Large Incandescent Lights
The orders of the different aldermen for the placement of fifty-power incandescent lamps were passed as follows:

First ward: At the intersection of Mineral Point avenue and Pine streets; in the center of Pearl street between Ravine street and Mineral Point avenue and beneath the foliage of the trees on Academy street between Ravine and Race streets.

Second Ward: At the intersections of Bluff and North First streets and East and North First streets and on South Hickory between Fourth avenue and Glen street.

Third Ward: At the intersections of Monroe and Glen streets, Jackson street and Milwaukee avenue, James place and McKee boulevard and Clark and Glen Etta streets, in front of the Hyzer residence on Milwaukee avenue and on the Court street bridge.

Fourth Ward: At the intersections of River and Holmes streets, Franklin street and Western avenue and on Eastern avenue at the foot of the Millmore hill.

Fifth Ward: At the intersections of Holmes and Linn streets and Madison and Pleasant streets.

Arc Lights Ordered
Arc lights were ordered for the corner of Prairie avenue and Benton street in the second ward and at the railroad crossing on McKee boulevard in the third ward.

FASHION NOTES

It takes an unusually keen foresight to prophesy the future of fashions in these days of frequent changes, but it seems to require no extraordinary ingenuity to see that one of the earliest of the radical changes in the modes will show its influence upon hats. Already new shapes are coming into vogue which suggest departures so pronounced from the polo turbans and other modes which have succumbed to over-popularity, that they seem to belong to a new era of fashion.

The milliners have produced some fascinatingly beautiful hats this season, to be sure, but when we sum up generally all the modes of the summer of 1905 the opinion is almost unanimous that the hat style set for this season has proved unbecoming, and for this reason women are already looking forward to the coming of new models.

It would not be surprising if within the next few years contortions and milliners alike did not "try out" radical changes in the fashion during the "go-between" season. This would practically eliminate the mid-season dullness in new styles, from one standpoint, and at the same time would give a better idea of what modes would be able to better withstand instantaneous popular approval, which sometimes is only another way of putting an early retirement, for few are the styles which can withstand over-popularity.

As in the present modes it is safe to predict that hats for the coming season will show the greatest variety in the smaller sized designs, such as toques, turbans, etc. A design which has maintained its dignity and favor exceedingly well is the regular tricorn, with the left side very much turned up, or rolled over.

The amazon, too, with a more decided dip of the brim in front and the brim turned up high on one side, is a pleasing and not too frequently copied hat.

Some of the smartest tricornes show the simplest trimming, although it goes without saying, that the acme of elegance is expressed in this simple decoration. A charmingly pretty hat of the tricorn variety is made of dark blue satin chip having three small blue ostrich tips and a bit of blue taffeta ribbon as its trimming.

In the centre of the ribbon bow is a large-sized button of blue embroidery, giving the only touch of contrast to the entire design, which tops an elegant frock of blue taffeta worked with pale blue embroidery.

More and more is the well-dressed woman becoming estranged from the modes which can be cheaply copied, no matter how effective their appearance may be at first. And, let it be explained here, that the milliners and modistes alike make a subtle distinction between cheapness and inexpressiveness. It is possible to have inexpensive hats and gowns with all the smart simplicity of elaboration of detail that mark modes costing small fortunes, but the really cheap things can never be tolerated if for no other reason than the primary one that it is vulgar. To this fact may be attributed the downfall of the polo hat and other models of its ilk. Its cheapness and the ability to get it in the cheap forms and to wear it with little or no trimming rendered it suited to tastes that are uncompromisingly opposed by the truly fashionable woman no matter how limited her dress allowance may be.

Crimoline hats are exceedingly smart and can be bought at greatly reduced prices at this season. In white or black they can be worn late in the season, and it would not be surprising if their ultra smartness did not usher them through the winter as evening hats. A model which can be copied with a reasonable expenditure of funds in white crinoline, the brim being slightly elevated at the back, with pink roses massed over a band of pink velvet. A simple wreath of pink roses, resting upon spreading green leaves encircles the crown and the jointure is concealed beneath a pink ostrich plume which waves over the brim at the back, partly meeting the roses under the brim.

The red hat enjoys a high place in the list of fashionable headgear and some of the most novel effects are seen in designs for general wear. One of these is a modified sailor with the brim dipping slightly in the front and the crown spreading at the top. At the left side the brim is tilted upward, not too sharply, with a red wing on either side. With the exception of a plain velvet band around the crown finished with a silver buckle, the hat has no other trimming.

Several new locomotives of the Atlantic type, in imitation of American design, have been manufactured in Germany and placed in service on the fast express line between Cologne, Berlin and Aix la Chapelle. The boilers are considerably larger than in the usual German engines, in consequence of which the smokestack is very low, being of the same height as the dome. The diameter of the driving wheels has been considerably increased and they are driven by four cylinders. There are two distinct furnaces fitted with smoke-consuming apparatus which seems to produce good results. These locomotives have received much attention by their massive and powerful appearance, and have proved to be more speedy than the ordinary German engines, so that there is every prospect of their number being increased, according to a report from United States Consul General Wright, at Munich. The tender is likewise built after the American pattern and is so constructed as to carry an extra large supply of water in addition to fuel.

Two hundred and fifty miners escaped through an air shaft, but thirty-nine were cut off and their death is regarded as certain.

Capital Hit.—The best thing we have heard in many days is a capital joke on Gov. Lewis a few days since. A gentleman and lady, his neighbors in Columbus, called on him at his office in Madison, and it happened that the lady seated herself in a revolving chair, during a social conversation. After some time, the governor thinking to get a joke on the lady, asked her if she did not know that she was sitting in a politician's chair. But the lady, with a ready wit, turned the joke upon the governor by instantly replying that she thought so because it turned around so easily.—Beaver Dam Argus.

Call for a Public Meeting.—Viewing with terror and alarm the spread of intemperance in our midst, a public meeting of our citizens is called to meet in the court room, this (Tuesday) evening, July 11th, to express their indignation at the disgraceful action of our city government, in their unprecedented stretch of powers in reconsidering a former vote of the council and reducing the license fees to liquor dealers, unheeding the prayers and petitions of a large number of the taxpaying, property holding citizens, thus opening wide the flood gates of intemperance in our city, and to consider what action can be taken to arrest this gigantic evil.

Citizens' arouse, and let all attend who would prevent a recurrence of the disgraceful scenes that transpired on our streets last Sabbath afternoon.

UNITED STATES BANK IN RECEIVER'S HANDS

E. G. Lewis and the Directors Declare There is Enough Cash to Pay All Depositors.

St. Louis, Mo., July 11.—E. G. Lewis' Peoples' United States bank is now in the hands of Judge Selden P. Spencer, receiver, appointed by the circuit court of St. Louis county, in compliance with a petition filed by Attorney General Hadley. This action was taken after the consultation with Secretary of State Swager, at which it was agreed that the fraud order issued by the postoffice department makes it impossible for the institution to continue to transact business.

Judge Spencer gave bond in the sum of $250,000 and at once undertook the work of closing up the affairs of the bank.

He said that the bank has enough cash on hand to pay off all depositors in full, and that he will ask the court to empower him to pay off these claims on demand.

The directors of the bank voted to fight the fraud order through the United States courts and to file immediately an application for an injunction to restrain the postal authorities from withholding the mail of the bank and of President Lewis.

The directors also drew up resolutions declaring that both the fraud order and the appointment of a receiver to be unwarranted, unjust and unnecessary. The fraud order was declared unconstitutional and un-American.

Mr. Lewis also protested both the fraud order and the appointment of a receiver, saying:

"The bank is solvent, and it was unnecessary and unjustifiable that the receiver should be appointed. The Peoples' United States bank has $1,000,000 in cash on hand to protect the $200,000 of its depositors. Of this $1,000,000, $1,000,000 is deposited in three St. Louis banks and is withdrawable on ten days' notice, and there is $600,000 in other banks of the United States."

THE TREASURY DEFICIT

The United States government ran behind last year $25,000,000 and while there is nothing alarming about the shortage, yet an effort will be made to prevent its recurrence.

In the face of the Panama canal investment, it will hardly be possible to make much of a showing along the lines of economy, and it is more than likely that the Secretary of the Treasury will recommend some plan for increasing the revenue.

This may be done by internal tax, or by a readjustment of the tariff schedule. The tariff reformer would like to have the schedule readjusted, but not along the lines to increased revenue. The argument is used that the tariff is already too high and that many protected industries no longer need protection.

Many writers and reform agitators attempt to make the people believe that an era of free trade is needed to crush monopolies. They seem to have forgotten the experiences of the last Cleveland administration, as well as the more important fact that the nation was never more prosperous than it is today.

The internal tax can be increased without being burdensome, because it is secured from goods which are not necessities. Beer, whisky, and tobacco are not on the household list, and the man who uses them has no right to complain of the price.

This argument is not advanced from a prohibition standpoint. Men drink and smoke regardless of price and the question of economy is never considered. The man who indulges in this class of luxuries has no right to complain of hard times and he seldom does. He belongs to the free hearted class of men, who seldom worry much about either the present or future.

Secretary Shaw will discover that the easiest way to raise more money is to increase the tax on the three items which any man can drop from his list of expenditures, if he will, with benefit both to himself and his family.

THE CHAMPION RANTER.

Of all the ranters who have appeared before the American people, Thomas J. Lawson stands at the head of the list. His harangues to the people of Kansas are of the most incendiary order, and the governor of Wisconsin, who is exploiting the same territory, finds himself such a small bored reformer, that he has abandoned his popular lecture on the "Machinery of the Machine" and is dishing up "Hamlet," much to the disgust of audiences assembled to listen to his tirade on corporations.

Lawson carries so many more guns than La Follette that the battery from Wisconsin is weak when the Boston agitator is in competition. Bryan is also suffering from the same cause. This choice trio is out on a mission of enlightenment and "bleeding Kansas" is entitled to sympathy. Lawson attracts the most attention, because he has the most money and is more familiar with the great financiers of the country than either of his competitors. He has discussed frenzied finance so strenuously that he is frenzied himself and when he returns from the "wild and woolly west" he will enjoy the well-earned reputation of trotting in a class by himself, for there is only one Thos. J. Lawson and the breed will not be perpetuated.

The people of Kansas may cheer him when he talks about revolution, but the rank and file of the voters in the Sunflower state have not forgotten that ten years ago they were cursed with mortgages which have long since disappeared, and they are well aware of the fact that while success has come to captains of industry, that it has also come to the people generally and they are satisfied.

Lawson is a traitor to the men who helped him make his money. He is entitled to no credit for not being associated with them today. He has made for himself a cheap reputation, but his name will be forgotten long before the history of his life becomes ancient.

When he stands before an audience and swings his arms and declares in a spasm of frenzy that he will live to make John D. Rockefeller a bankrupt, there is so much of spittle mixed up with the statement that people turn away in disgust.

Boston has produced a number of curios, but Lawson takes the cake.

CAPE TO CAIRO.

Recently attention was called to the fact that it is only about fifty years ago when Livingston discovered the Victoria Falls, the first white person to view that marvelous spectacle, and that now a railroad with every modern convenience has been constructed through the heart of Africa to this wonder of the world. Our consul at Beirut sends the government an account of the latest construction upon this railroad, which is intended to connect the city of Cairo, Egypt, with the Cape. From this account it appears that the bridge over the gorge at Victoria Falls has been completed. This is a cantilever bridge and is 650 feet long and 380 feet above high water, which makes it the highest bridge in the world. The railway when completed will be 5,700 miles long. In these days of stupendous engineering the construction of such a railroad as this and such a bridge as this is perhaps not so wonderful, but it is marvelous that civilization should have so quickly followed in the tracks of the explorer and made the supposed inaccessible regions of darkest Africa accessible to the modern tourist.

After noting the spectacular love feast that went on in Paris yesterday Kaiser Wilhelm will be inclined to regret that there are no American heroes lying around anywhere in his domain to be dug up and returned with appropriate ceremonies.

District Attorney Jerome may not be able to accomplish much, but it is safe to say that he is interfering seriously with the sleep of some of the Equitable officials just now.

There is a suspicion in some quarters that the enthusiasm with which Messrs. Taft, Shaw and Fairbanks greet Root's return to politics is a little forced.

Chauncey M. Depew's sensations as he hit the pavement just outside the Equitable society's offices should afford material for a fine after-dinner story.

Detroit Evening News: At least the dead man who has been drawing $25,000 a year from the Equitable wasn't doing the company any further harm.

Boston Herald: Is there luck in odd numbers? DEPEW MAKES FAKE PROMISE

Agreement to Reimburse Equitable for Poor Loan Is Not Binding.

MANY FRAUDS ARE COVERED UP

Transactions by Insiders Kept Secret Until Directors Are Forced to Divulge Them Before Insurance Commissioner.

New York, July 11.—Revelations far more startling than those in the report of Supt. Hendricks are contained in the testimony taken in the state insurance department's investigation of the Equitable Life Assurance society.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew testified that the Depew Improvement company, in which he was interested obtained a loan from the Equitable of $250,000 on property which the state insurance department valued at only $150,000. He admitted that neither principal nor interest had been paid, and that the Equitable had been forced to foreclose.

Depew's Promise Not Binding. He admitted that as a member of the executive committee of the Equitable he had not advised this loan, but had voted for it. He confessed to making a promise that the Equitable should be remunerated, but in the same breath said that promise was not binding legally.

Jacob H. Schiff, confronted with records of the Equitable that Kubn, Loeb & Co., had sold a large amount of Union Pacific preferred stock to the society, swore that these records were false. In various sales of bonds to the Equitable by his firm he admitted that a large loss was shown. He confessed that he had been a dummy director, but said that since the Equitable scandal developed he had bought five shares of stock, paying $2,000 a share.

No Record of Agreement. It appeared from his testimony and that of Mr. Hyde and others that the Equitable had taken $2,000,000 worth of Union Pacific preferred, apparently at the suggestion of E. H. Harriman. It appeared that this stock was taken under a syndicate agreement that it should not be sold, making the deal a speculative one. No record of this agreement was put in evidence. Mr. Hyde said Mr. Harriman had it, but Harriman was not called as a witness.

President Alexander admitted that he was in eight syndicates that sold securities to the Equitable. In the case of only two of these did he ostensibly pay back profits to the society. These profits amounted to $40,000, but he was forced to admit that the Equitable had not yet got the money, it being in the hands of a trustee. He admitted sanctioning leases of Equitable property to Hyde's safe deposit companies at nominal rentals, to the great loss of the society.

Reveal Inside History. James H. Hyde admitted participation in eight syndicates that sold securities to the Equitable. He swore positively that President Alexander was in all of these knowingly. He admitted that the $60,000 he had ostensibly paid back to the Equitable had never reached the treasury.

William H. McIntyre, the close friend of Mr. Hyde, testified that the big profits made out of the Equitable by the Hyde syndicates. He said Hyde and Alexander apportioned the shares of the gains to the participants. In one deal alone he said $95,000 was cleared.

Alvin W. Krech, president of the Equitable Trust company, told how young Mr. Hyde had made large profits out of the increase in capitalization of the trust company, while the Equitable, which might have profited largely, really had sustained losses.

JUST THOUGHTS.

Love is blind to the interests of all gas companies.

It takes a lot of rehearsing to make the average man honest.

Some men are too lazy to make either enemies or friends.

Only a born diplomat can be frank and popular at the same time.

The plainer the woman the longer it takes her to select a becoming bonnet.

A young man may be as old as he feels, but he is seldom as rich as he looks.

A girl who can love but once spends the most of her time in front of a mirror.

Many a man has died without a struggle who found it impossible to live that way.

No woman would ever quarrel with a man if it wasn't for the pleasure of making it up again.

A girl doesn't really believe that a young man never made love to another girl, but she says she does.

He who doesn't marry too young remains in the bachelor class to the end, according to a disappointed benedict.

There are a lot of things that a man would not want half so much if he thought there was any chance of getting them.

When an engagement is announced in a small town the rest of the inhabitants begin to discuss which of the two contracting parties is going to get the worst of it.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

How speedily a business can go to pieces if neglected.

So many people get credit for being bright, when that is only one of the requisites for success.

The girls swing too far; they put too much confidence in their lovers, and after they marry they don't put enough.

If the storms make you timid, and you have no faith in prayer, you can make a pretty good preparation by paying your debts.

About the only time a man is willing to hold the baby is when it is an alternative; either that or go into the parlor and entertain the company.

There never was a man who wasn't afraid of storms. Half the men in town had their wives hanging around them last night because of the storm.

If the women continue to diminish their clothing for the next six weeks as much as they have during the past, we would have to be blind along about the Fourth of July.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

SERMONETTES.

Perfect people are very tiring.

The road down hill is always greased.

Taste for duty can be cultivated like any other.

One does not advance far who treads many paths.

A man's affidavit of his own character is not evidence.

The martyr is honest, and the man who makes him a martyr is frequently quite as honest.

There are only two things the matter with the world, selfishness and ignorance; and it's a question which is the worst.

There is no need of preaching a gospel for the individual. The individual who has it in him to shape his own environment will do it. The masses of mankind are not strong enough to overcome their environment. Any efficient gospel for them must take account of that environment.

FROM THE PENCIL'S POINT.

Sound judgment seldom makes the most noise.

The easiest thing in the world to make is trouble.

The average girl believes in affections—and lots of them.

Charity begins at home, but it generally ends with poor relations.

A woman is never quite happy with a man who refuses to argue with her.

Some men impress us with the idea that it's too much trouble to make enemies.

A coat of arms has little value in the eyes of the second-hand clothing merchant.

Some people are so constituted that they get a lot of enjoyment out of being miserable.

The people who won't listen to reason are those who say they have no reason to listen.

The more kat a man can buy for $2 the less bonnet a woman can buy for $20; yet people still harp on the eternal fitness of things.

PHILOSOPHY OF A PESSIMIST.

Better borrow from a pawnbroker than from a friend.

Blueness may be all right in blood, but it's all wrong in milk.

What some public speakers need is better terminal facilities.

It's surprising what a lot of nothing some men are able to accomplish.

The good may die young, but the bad always outlive their usefulness.

If sleep is conducive to beauty some women must suffer from chronic insomnia.

If a word to the wise is sufficient, lawyers must consider jurors blooming idiots.

A crooked horse race results from a notable lack of straightness in the human race.

A hypocrite is a man who neglects his family in order to pose as a public benefactor.

An optimist derives a lot of pleasure from thinking of troubles that do not trouble him.

Doctors are healthy, as a rule—probably because they seldom take their own medicine.

A man knows very little of the happenings in the neighborhood when his wife is away on a visit.

Some men consult their watches with an air that leads an observer to believe they doubt the accuracy of the sun.

All things may come to the man who waits—with the possible exception of the waiter with the kind of a dinner he is waiting for.

Ignorance is certainly bliss when a man has more money than he knows what to do with.

Money talks convincingly at times, and again there are times when it gets badly rattled.

All the money dropped in frenzied finance is dropped by men who are trying to pick it up.

Riches have wings, and experience leads us to believe that greenbacks are printed on fly-paper.

Time isn't money, otherwise a man wouldn't have to spend so much time trying to borrow a little money.

Contentment may be better than great riches, but most people are willing to take chances with a big bank balance.

A politician never gives up politics for good until he is convinced that he has got his full share of coin out of the game.

PURCHASE BUILDING OF "NOVELTY WORKS"

Jamesville Clothing Company Buy Larger Quarters for Their Growing Industry.

This morning papers were drawn up for the transfer of the factory building on the old Woodruff estate, commonly known as the "Novelty Works." It having been occupied formerly by the Northwestern Novelty Manufacturing company, to the individual members of the Jamesville Clothing company. The building will be remodeled and occupied by the new owners. The transaction involves a sum of about $7,500 and the property is desired to Joe Weber, Jr., J. B. Francis and W. H. Stephenson.

In their present quarters at 17 and 19 South Main street, the clothing company has been crowded for a year past and the members of the concern have been contemplating the move which transpired this morning for the last three or four months. Plans for the changes have not yet been drawn up but work on them will be commenced before the end of the week and work on the repairs begun immediately. The building will be enlarged and the three floors of the structure put in readiness for use. The cost of remodeling will be about $2,000.

Will Enlarge Force
If present plans can be carried out the clothing company will move on the first of November. New machinery, particularly in the way of motors, will be purchased probably at an expense of about $1,000. The present force of fifty hands will be enlarged twenty-five per cent and after not more than a week's shut-out which will be necessary in moving the company will recommence operations. With that increase in equipment and help they expect to be able to meet their orders and as these grow the equipment and force will steadily be enlarged. "The force works the year around," said J. Weber, Jr., this afternoon. "We believe in employing a smaller force the entire time than a large number of hands only a part of each year."

BABE IS BURIED BY ORDER OF MARSHAL

Mrs. Emory Phelps Complains to Mayor That Poormaster Kenyon Refused Her Aid.

Having been refused aid by Superintendent of Poor S. B. Kenyon when her ten-day-old baby died and she had not sufficient money to pay the burial expenses, Mrs. Emory Phelps, 257 Locust street, applied to Mayor Hutchinson yesterday for help. The Mayor endeavored to find Mr. Kenyon in the afternoon, but being unable brought the matter before the city fathers at their session. A storm of indignation against Mr. Kenyon immediately arose and the gist of talk was that many of the aldermen were much dissatisfied with Mr. Kenyon's action, in that the city paid a large sum into the county fund to meet the cost of all such cases. A committee to investigate the matter was appointed by his honor as follows: P. Jackson, E. T. Fish and W. H. Merritt. Nothing was officially done by this body today but at the order of Chief of Police Constock a coffin was purchased, a grave constructed and the child buried. The babe died yesterday morning and it is reported that the assistance was refused on the grounds that the father should be able to pay the expenses of interment.

JUST A SAMPLE HAILSTONE

Man from "Dakoty" Was Not to Be Downed by Any Ordinary Visitation.

"You take a man from Dakoty and you can't surprise him with any play of the elements—wind or storm or what not," said Mr. Boggs, reminiscences, relates Youth's Companion, "and there's other things a man raised out in Dakoty takes mighty calm, too."

"Such as what?" demanded the postmaster, with whom Mr. Boggs was willing away a hot afternoon.

"Well," said Mr. Boggs, slowly, "I could tell ye plenty of incidents, but I'll select one that occurred in the streets of New York city when my cousin Joshua from Dakoty was on, and we were seeing the sights together."

"We were walking along a street one day on our way to the Battery, and stopped to look into a window. A woman that was investigating the contents of a tin pail that she was trying to freeze some ice cream in lost her hold on it, and it fell off the window ledge three stories up, and lit plumb on Cousin Joshua's back as he was stooped, looking in at the shop. I heard it coming, but too late to warn him."

"Well, the pail, ice cream and all, slip off his back, and skittered out across the sidewalk into the gutter. Joshua straightened up and looked at me. He didn't see it go, but he heard it. He never turned round at all, but just began to rub his back with both hands."

"We have 'em as large—about as large and hefty as that—our hailstones—in Dakoty," he said to me as he was rubbing, "but I don't recollect their ever coming single that way; not more than once or twice, at any rate."

Flypaper Checks Out Worms.

Los Angeles orange growers recently saved their trees from an attack of millions of cutworms by wrapping some flypaper around the trunk of each tree, the branches being also trimmed so that they wouldn't touch the ground. The worms couldn't crawl past the barrier of flypaper.

Close Quarters.

"You're in a pretty tight fix," said the defendant's lawyer. "One-half the jury want to hang you, and the rest don't think you're worth the rope." Atlanta Constitution.

JUNE WEATHER NEXT TO IDEAL

TEMPERATURE COMFORTABLE AND RAINS NOT TOO MANY.

WAS GREAT HELP TO CROPS

Cool Nights and Warm Days, with Fresh Breezes the General Weather Rule.

With nights cool and the days warm but not oppressively hot, a fresh breeze blowing the greater part of the time, the month of June was, in the minds of the majority of southern Wisconsin residents, a thirty-day period next to ideal. Twenty-two days were recorded as pleasant with sunshine and a breeze while seven were changeable with sunshine and showers or sunshine and clouds and but one day were there heavy rains. Though at the beginning of the month one or two of the crops seemed a little backward the weather and temperature was about right to bring everything up to the standard or above and some of the largest harvests that have ever been gathered will be those from the 1905 crops.

Proof of Cool Nights.

Compared to the month of May the average temperature has risen 11.7 degrees, the average low temperature 9.4 degrees and the average high 14.3. This shows that there has been a considerable change in the temperature during the day with less at night. The average high temperature was 86.6, the average low 59.2 and the general average 72.9. The mercury reached the highest point on the twenty-fourth when it attained the 99 mark and dropped to the lowest on the third, 45 being the low temperature recorded for that day. The table of conditions and temperatures for the days for the month are appended:

Day of month	High temp.	Low temp.

RURAL CARRIERS ALLOWED SIX DAYS OFF EACH YEAR

General Order Issued Will Supplant Former System of Special Orders for Holidays.

Because there was a failure at Washington on the part of some of the postal employees to mail the orders declaring July 4 a holiday for rural carriers forcing the country delivery men to work last week when the rest of the nation celebrated, a general order has been issued from the postoffice department making New Year's day, Washington's birth anniversary, Memorial day, July 4, labor day and Thanksgiving day holidays for the rural carriers. Formerly each of these days the men were allowed to be off by special orders. Christmas was not named as a holiday, the business of the postoffice department being the largest at this time of any in the year.

ROUTINE WORK OF THE CITY COUNCIL

Contract for Furnishing City with Coal Awarded—No Objections to Usual Batch of Bills.

At the session of the Common council last evening the usual amount of routine business was transacted. A sewer on Franklin street from the alley between Dodge and Milwaukee streets to Center street was ordered constructed. The city clerk was ordered to draw on the city treasurer $38.60 from the general fund and $1,455 from the sewerage fund in part payment to M. J. Benson for sewer work in district number five. The bonds of R. G. Merrill filed upon his application for a saloon license which were not accepted because of the non-payment of fees on a previous occasion were accepted last evening. The order to transfer the saloon license of E. O. Smith to Albert Teubert was adopted. An order was passed for the construction of new sidewalks and curb on the south of the library lot and in front of Third ward voting booth.

Eleven dealers put in bids for furnishing the city with coal and after consideration of the proposals in the proper committee Alderman Conell moved the bid of Herman Lehtinen be accepted. The motion was passed. The successful figures were as follows:

For sixty tons of large egg anthracite—$8.45 per ton.
For forty tons of pea coal—$6.45 per ton.

For ten tons of Hocking Valley—$6.60 per ton.

For Hocking Valley to be delivered in carload lots at the stone-crushing plant—$5.50 per ton.

The other dealers and firms to bid were F. A. Taylor, Badger Coal company, G. W. Sager, Cullen Brothers, People's Coal company and Jamesville Coal company.

The report of the Municipal court was received and passed favorably upon. Similar action was taken on the usual batch of bills when reported upon by the finance committee. The assistant street commissioner reported on new walks built and new works needed. His report was adopted. The report of the public schools for June was accepted upon the motion of Alderman Brockhaus.

LIBRARY ASKS FOR THE USUAL AMOUNT

Four Thousand Dollar Appropriation Requested—Gratifying Report for Year Is Made

With sufficient funds on hand to meet the running expenses of the Jamesville public library until the new appropriation will be available, the board in their annual report to the common council last evening asked for the usual four thousand dollars set apart annually to support the institution. This amount is ten per cent of the Carnegie and Eldred gifts to the city and according to the agreement made in accepting the donations must be appropriated yearly. The report was received and placed on the agenda.

Increased Popularity

The report showed the library had increased in popularity, the number of borrowers' cards and also the circulation books having enlarged during the past year over the corresponding figures for the previous twelve months. The number of cards now in use was 1068 and the circulation of books for the year ending June 30 was 49,573. This figure was an increase of 4,536 over the total circulation for the year ending June 30, 1904.

A Thousand More Books

There were 10,065 books on hand July 1, 1904, and 17,143 on hand June 30, 1905, an increase in the number of volumes at the disposal of the public of 1,678. During the twelve months there were added by purchase 902 volumes, by gifts 76 and by binding 154, totaling 1,132 new books. But 110 other volumes were withdrawn, 103 because of worn out condition and 13 were lost.

Receipts and Expenditures

On July 1, 1904, there was a balance on hand of $201.57, $4,000 was placed at the disposal of the board by appropriation and $114.30 was collected in fines, etc., totaling the receipts of the year at $4,715.87. The expenditures aggregated $4,088.63, leaving a balance on hand at present of $1,227.24. The report of expenditures showed that $1,062.87 was invested in new books, $231.30 was paid out for binding and the periodicals for the reading room cost $139.35. The rest of the money was used for lighting, both electric and gas, fuel, insurance, janitor's and librarians' services and supplies and sundries. But forty dollars was paid out for insurance, the policies being most of them for three or five years and but few premiums falling due. $14,000 insurance is carried on the building and $7,000 on the books.

ENDS ROMANCE OF BOYHOOD LOVE

CRUEL PARENT REFUSES TO ALLOW DAUGHTER TO MARRY.

MUST WAIT UNTIL CHRISTMAS

Her Syrian Sweetheart Does Not Want To—Offers To Buy the Girl's Time.

From a girl and boy love in far-off Syria to Jamesville, where a stern parent refuses his sanction to the wedding of two loving hearts, is a romance that is not written every day. It is five years since James Ablan, saw his little sweetheart in Sahle, Syria, then he was eighteen and she but fifteen. Her father, Joe Himesey, emigrated to America, finally settling in Jamesville. A year later Ablan came to America also and joined his brother, A. Ablan, in Duluth.

Learns of Sweetheart

It was only a short time ago he learned the whereabouts of his former sweetheart. He came to Jamesville and saw her father. Syrian customs and American customs are not the same. There the girl is sometimes bought outright from her parents. Maud Himesey, the daughter, works in the knitting factory. Her wages go into the family treasury; her father was loath to part with her until Christmas anyway.

Offers Money

But James could not wait until Christmas. He wanted to be married at once. He sent for his brother, A. Ablan, to come from Duluth. The elder Ablan is married and versed in the affairs of heart and business. They spent three weeks in Jamesville, living at a hotel. The more James saw of Maud the more in love he became. He asked her if she loved him as she walked with him to her work, and she said she did. Then he went to the father and offered to pay him for his daughter's time until Christmas if he would consent to their marriage at once. But Joe Himesey was obstinate. He said Christmas and Christmas it must be.

Offered Guarantee

Then James offered to deposit five hundred dollars, Joe to do the same, and wait until Christmas. James wanted the money placed in a bank and if when Christmas came Himesey still should again refuse to allow the marriage to proceed he should be given the whole sum or if he backed out before that time the money was to go to Himesey. This Himesey also refused. He offered to sign a paper agreeing to the marriage at Christmas, but Ablan was suspicious. Money talks, not paper.

It Is All Over

Ablan does not believe it would be right to run away with the girl and marry her, even though they both love each other. He has wasted three weeks in courtship and now he wants to get back to work. He knows other Syrian girls, but he loves Maud. He would like to wait for her until Christmas if he was sure she would be able to marry him then, but the uncertainty of it all is worrying him. He will go back to Duluth and perhaps wait. Perhaps he will forget his sweetheart of the Syrian village and marry some other girl.

EMPHATIC TALK

The Kind That Carries Conviction to Every Janesville Reader.

Conviction must follow such emphatic proof as is given here. The testimony of Janesville residents should satisfy the most skeptical. Here is a Janesville case. Read it and see if doubt can exist in the face of this evidence.

Mr. E. T. Fish, of 355 Ravine street, proprietor of the Fish Dray Line says: "When I was twenty years of age I fell in my back, and ever since that I was troubled more or less with a dull aching pain across the loins. It never laid me up but it was often painful and annoying. Of late years I have gone to a physician every six months and had myself thoroughly examined under the impression that there might be something wrong with my kidneys. The diagnosis always resulting in the physician claiming these organs were sound, but as the pains existed when I happened to notice in our Janesville papers that Doan's Kidney Pills were guaranteed to cure just such troubles I procured a box at the People's Drug store and took them. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good preparation. My back has not ached since I used them. I have heard others speak very complimentary of them and if I did not know their merit and required such a medicine I would consider it a favor if some one suggested their use to me. For this reason I endorse them."

DISCHARGE UNCOVERS SCANDAL AT ARSENAL

Government Finds Leak of Millions Through Loose Methods of Doing Business.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 11.—Work on 200,000 dress coats contracted for through the Schenck arsenal here has been stopped by a parliamentary order of Quartermaster General Humphreys in Washington, and a thorough investigation of the affairs at the arsenal has been begun.

Because of the conditions under which contracts are given out at the arsenal nearly half of the dress coats in question have been manufactured and paid for. They lie idle in the storehouse at the depot and in the opinion of experts of the government who have examined them are absolutely worthless for the purpose for which they were made. A contract for 200,000 pairs of dress trousers is in the hands of the manufacturers. Stoppage on this work also is expected within a few days. It is believed that the investigation which has been started will show that the government has lost millions of dollars by the methods in vogue here.

The contracts in question are held by three firms which have factories in this city and in Red Bank, N. J., and Egg Harbor, N. J. As yet there are no charges of fraud in connection with the investigation. The colossal losses are attributed to loose ways of doing business.

The investigation is the outcome of the trouble with the arsenal employees dating back to last winter and of the more recent scandal when the foreman of the arsenal was forced to resign and eight cutters were dismissed.

AT THE THEATER.

BEFORE THE CURTAIN RISES.

There are doings in a theater after the curtain has been raised, of course. Roughed ladies and padded gentlemen in an unreal world disport themselves more or less interestingly on the stage, and the leader of the orchestra is overtaken by a sudden frenzy at times, and is only comforted by the appearance of the tripping chorus girls. Yes, there are doings, and these other doings of which we speak are seen at their best before the advertised performance begins.

They are the reward given to the early comers. They are the emoluments of virtue.

We like to go to the theater early and often, even as the earnest political worker likes to vote. We pick out a comfortable seat near the entrance to the center aisle and (having performed the sad duty of reading the side remarks on the program) we clutch our right instep with both hands and proceed to enjoy whatever the gods may have to offer us. We gaze in the pasturage of peaceful observation.

A fussy and rotund man waddles down the aisle.

"Check, sir?" inquires the usher, running after him.

Rotundity waves his hand, negatively, even scornfully, and proceeds to find his seat himself. Here is a man who evidently believes that if a thing is to be done right he must do it himself. He is the type of man who overthrows obstacles and tramples down puerile opposition. He would bully a cook and swear at a policeman. And yet—well, as we glance up at the usherial eye, we make up our mind on the spot that it will be worth while to keep a careful eye on Rotundity, the fussy man who insisted upon finding his own seat.

Two girls enter a box and look down haughtily at the fussy man and himself—the only other present occupants of the house. They look upon us with a coldness that makes us shrink in our seat. We pluck up courage and smile at them, but it has no effect. It then occurs to us that the distance is too great for any ordinary smile to be seen, and we accordingly smile extraordinarily. The girls whisper to each other (evidently exchanging some disparaging remarks about something), and then they point their opera glasses at us. We at once concentrate our attention upon the fussy man in front, and are pleased when another little group trots down the center aisle in the wake of the usher.

This is a little group of two—a determined looking female and the usual type of man that accompanies determined looking females. She is very broad and very majestic. Her features are of an imperial cast and her tread is heavy.

"I just know our seat is behind a pillar!" she says.

Her husband attempts to reassure her, but a black beetle might as well try to reassure a mountain when the wind blows.

The usher puts them in two first class seats, and it is evident from the configuration of the back of her neck that she thinks some game has been put up on her. She looks up at the two girls in the box and sniffs. We admire the old lady for that sniff.

Six gushing girls sweep down the aisle at once. The duet in the box coughs and otherwise attempts to attract the attention of the sextette, obviously with a view to inciting envy. But the sextette is wise. Each girl is vivacious enough for six, and as they swish down the aisle (making enough noise in the aggregate for 36) they are utterly unconscious of the two haughty box occupants, although as they stood in the lobby, arranging their skirts to walk down the aisle with the proper effect, we heard them discussing the hat of the tall girl in the box in the most derisive language.

The usher snaps down five seats and the fussy man is sitting in the sixth. The usher has him out in no time.

The usher is now getting busy and the fussy man has been moved twice in the past minute. A blase gentleman in evening clothes makes his imposing way down the aisle. His wife's airs are simply insufferable, and the girls in the box look at him with an approving welcome as though here was a man who gave tone to otherwise low company. On the other hand, the determined looking lady smiles sourly at her husband upon seeing the sight. He, poor man, encouraged by her smile, seems to be congratulating her that her fears of sitting behind a pillar were unfounded. Whereupon she turns upon him with a tense and scathing look and he shuts up most abjectly.

A little girl accompanied by her father now descends the aisle. Somehow we instinctively know that this is her birthday and that her daddy is bringing her as a special treat. Her white skirt has the fullness of a little ballet dancer's and her golden hair, adorned with a blue ribbon bow, ripples around her head like a sunlit water fall. Her eyes are blue as blue, like little Mary's, and as she trips past us she looks back at us and gently smiles. We smile back and with bated breath we watch her go down the aisle. Before she sits down she looks at us and smiles again. We sigh with a dreary feeling of loneliness and turn dreary feeling of loneliness and turn to our program for amusement.

We look up with a scowl upon hearing a colloquy down the aisle, and we find that the usher has again made the fussy man change his seat. The situation is complicated by the fact that the fussy man is attempting to claim the seat occupied by the determined looking lady.

And did he get it?
Did he get it? You bet he got it!—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Are You Tired of Paying

Blunder Taxes?

Many a business man pays as much money for the luxury of blundering as a steam yacht or private touring car would cost.

"Blunder Taxes" cannot be evaded—whatever else waits, these must be paid. If a business man gets into the habit of making the same blunders more than once, the taxes will soon amount to confiscation.

"Blunder Taxes" are levied with amazing frequency upon store advertisers. Among the blunders which are assessed at "full value" in advertising are these:

Selection of poor mediums;

Using too little space in good mediums;

Devoting less attention to preparing the daily store-advertisements than to the storing of some empty boxes in the basement;

Stopping the ad. altogether for one or more days now and then;

Figuring the advertising appropriation on the basis of what you can "afford" after all other expenses are provided for.

Use of circulars, posters, fence-signs, placards and jim-cracks, under the impression that you are securing real publicity, and that somehow, somewhere, sometime someone will be influenced by some of these things to come to your store and buy something.

Your "Blunder-Tax" Bill Grows Smaller and Smaller As Your Use of Newspaper Publicity Grows Bigger and Bigger.
